

FEDERAL RESERVE BANK OF MINNEAPOLIS

Thank you for joining me for the excellent Wednesdays with Woodward conversation hosted by the Travelers Institute. I enjoyed the wide range of topics and questions and hope you did as well.

Conversations like these are examples of the Minneapolis Fed's commitment to making a contribution to public policy and to examining some of the most pressing economic issues in the nation. We at the Fed represent you, and I'm always eager to listen to and learn from individuals and communities, both in the Ninth District and around the country.

Following our discussion, I wanted to pass along my essay on monetary policy from earlier this summer and invite you to join our email list to be notified of future events and research from the Minneapolis Fed. I encourage you to visit our website, minneapolisfed.org, where you can find more information about our work, including our recent research and analysis on inflation. You can also learn about the Bank's Opportunity and Inclusive Growth Institute and subscribe to For All, the Institute's print magazine dedicated to understanding and addressing economic disparities.

Again, thank you for joining the conversation, and a special thanks to Joan Woodward and the Travelers team for making it happen.

Sincerely,

Neel Kashkari
President, Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis