

Marlene M. Ibsen

President & CEO
Travelers Foundation

Vice President, Community Relations
Travelers

As CEO & President of Travelers Foundation and VP, Community Relations for Travelers, Marlene Ibsen focuses on making connections that strengthen community and enhance business sustainability. She manages the company's giving and community-related employee engagement activities. Marlene has developed a strategic approach for the company's philanthropy, designed to align business interests with community needs and assets.

Prior to her role in Community Relations, Marlene served in a variety of public relations and communications management roles at Travelers. Before joining Travelers, Marlene worked as a writer/producer and public relations consultant and has experience working in communications and fundraising for nonprofit organizations.

A first-generation college graduate, she holds a bachelor of science degree in radio-TV-film from Texas Christian University and a master of science degree in communications management from Syracuse University.

Marlene currently serves as a director of College Possible National in Saint Paul, Minnesota, and as treasurer and director for the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving in Connecticut. She is a member of the Boston College Center for Corporate Citizenship's Executive Forum and the Connecticut Women's Council. Marlene has also chaired the boards of directors of NCAN (National College Attainment Network) in Washington, DC, and Junior Achievement of Southwest New England in Connecticut, and served on numerous additional local and national nonprofit and professional association boards.
