

Tim Bailey is currently the Director of Curriculum Development and Instructional Design at The Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History. He is the developer of the Hamilton Education Program that debuted at Hamilton on Broadway as well as the professional development programs, Teaching Literacy through History and Teaching Civics through History. He authored the Easy Simulations book series for Scholastic Publishing. Prior to the Institute, he was a U.S. History teacher at Northwest Middle School in Salt Lake City, Utah and in his 20+ years in the classroom, has taught at all levels from elementary to college. He earned both his bachelors and masters degrees at the University of Utah. His distinctions include Utah State Teacher of the Year 2001, National History Teacher of the Year 2009, and University of Utah Classroom Teacher of the Year 2010.